American film stars shooting in Prague tend to be a fussy lot - hence, they send them here to feast on chef Zdeněk Pohlreich's fab creations such as roe deer saddle with mushroom ragout, served up expertly with a glass of good Pinot Grigio from Trentino. Ever redesigning yet ever homely, Divinis is these days surrounded by worthy rivals but it still takes booking well in advance. Distance from Loews: 0.6 miles
Updated American classics are served in kitschy environs with a retro rec-room vibe at the bar.

Situated on the Vltava riverbank overlooking the Charles Bridge, the terrace here is the place to be on a warm Prague evening. Cuisine is casual, varied and eclectic, making this an international favorite for both splash out meetings and couples – crawfish appetizers are ideal among pals while roast duck with cabbage compote rounds out a hearty. All goes perfectly with excellent Czech beer or Moravian wine. Book terrace tables well ahead or take a chance on one in the “just drinks” section.
