TSI publishes Sulphur – a dynamic nutrient in Chinese agriculture brochure

WASHINGTON, DC, July 9, 2015 – The Sulphur Institute (TSI) announced the publication of its newest brochure: Sulphur – a dynamic nutrient in Chinese agriculture. This brochure delves into the various types of fertilizers available to correct deficiencies and examines aspects of application management. The brochure is available to download in English and Chinese on TSI's website: www.sulphurinstitute.org/publications.

The publication concludes a program that involved a multi-year partnership with China's National Agricultural Technology Extension and Service Center from the Ministry of Agriculture. The Sulphur Institute has identified China's potential to be 1.8 million tons of sulphur consumption annually as a fertilizer nutrient.

Founded in 1960, TSI represents all stakeholders actively engaged in producing, buying, selling, handling, transporting, or adding value to sulphur on a global basis. For more information about TSI membership, programs and contributions to the industry, contact Donald Messick, The Sulphur Institute, 1020 19th Street NW, Suite 520, Washington, DC 20036, USA.
