Chevron Joins The Sulphur Institute

WASHINGTON, DC, January 17, 2012 – The Sulphur Institute recently added Chevron Products Company, a division of Chevron U.S.A. Inc., as a new member of its organization. Catherine Randazzo, TSI president and CEO, remarked, “TSI welcomes Chevron as a new member company of our organization. Their role as a leader within the sulphur and allied industries parallels TSI’s mission to be a global representative of the sulphur industry.” Chevron Products Company directly manages the logistics and marketing of sulphur at seven facilities in the United States and Canada producing elemental molten sulphur at both petroleum refineries and gas processing plants.

“Chevron is a great addition to TSI,” stated Mark Whittemore, executive vice president Oxbow Sulphur. The Sulphur Institute now has eight sulphur-producing members and a total of 45 members. “As the industry grows, more companies are looking upon The Sulphur Institute as a global advocate and leader. We look forward to welcoming additional members to this valuable organization as we speak for all involved in the business of sulphur,” Whittemore added.

Founded in 1960, TSI represents all stakeholders actively engaged in producing, buying, selling, handling, transporting, or adding value to sulphur on a global basis.
